About Me

For as long as she can remember, Dr. Maya Rockeymoore Cummings has been a champion for justice. Raised in a military family, she learned early that resilience, discipline, and service were the keys to making a lasting impact. Her father, an Air Force officer and serial entrepreneur, and her late mother, a civil servant and educator, instilled in her a steadfast work ethic and a deep commitment to uplifting others.

Maya's journey has taken her from the halls of academia to the corridors of power in Washington, D.C. Armed with a Ph.D. in political science, she has worked on Capitol Hill, led national initiatives on health equity, and advised major foundations, policymakers, and government agencies on strategies to advance economic security, racial justice, and public health. As the founder of Global Policy Solutions, she built a leading social change firm that tackled systemic disparities. With her health-tech venture, HyperVigilant, she's harnessing the power of artificial intelligence to close life-threatening gaps in hypertension diagnosis and treatment, particularly in underserved communities.

But across every chapter of her career, one truth became painfully clear: Racism doesn't just create inequality—it warps how society values people at every stage of life. Maya's life's work is about confronting these patterns head-on—with strategy, heart, and unstoppable purpose. Whether she's speaking truth to power, building bold new ventures, or crafting policies that serve the public good, she's driven by a vision of a society where everyone is seen, valued, and empowered to thrive.
